Notes:

1. In principle, only full-time faculty members who are to teach a course on or in one of the national languages are eligible for the Subsidies. However, given the circumstances, an adjunct faculty member may also be eligible if deemed appropriate by the course-offering unit and approved by the Vice President for Academic Affairs via an official document. Please note that special research/discussion, thesis/dissertation, internship/experiment, and speech-based courses are not eligible for the Subsidies; nor are the courses which have been subsidized otherwise in the same academic year.
2. Course Subsidy: For each new course, the number of points approved is capped at 20; for each continuing course, the number of points approved is capped at 10. If the approved course is co-instructed, the subsidy shall be divided among the responsible faculty members in accordance with their proportions of teaching.
3. Teaching Materials Subsidy: The subsidy amount for each new course shall be determined based on the University's financial circumstances for the given academic year, with the maximum capped at NT$20,000.
